Letter from the CHAIR

The Clock is Ticking

If summer is your season to break from your regular routine and take that adventure to the mountains, the family trip to the beach or even just the stay-cation at home, you don't need me to remind you that time is running out. As we survive this coming August heatwave, we'll long for the cooler days of fall and know regular routines are right around the corner. Don't forget to recharge yourself.

"Recharging" doesn't necessarily mean "rest" as we all know summer can be just as busy as any other season of the year - but maybe taking time to do something out of the ordinary - something that fills us up with positive energy and maybe even inspires us - can give us that boost we need. Whatever that is for you, take the time. You won't regret it. If you really are going on a vacation, remember:

A proper vacation does three things.

- * It takes you away from the stresses and demands of your daily life;
- * it gives your body time to heal and rejuvenate; and,

* it invigorates your mind by returning you to your natural rhythm."

~ Sage Wilcox

Life can be challenging at times and the pressure can take a toll on our minds and our bodies. Whether an extended vacation or an afternoon off - time to recharge is the best gift we give ourselves and can only make us better. Better for our families, our community and our jobs.

Scott Fuller, Life School
