A Most REWARDING

After

As a designer, I am privileged to meet a lot of people. My clients run the gamut, from small one-room projects to whole house redesigns, but one of the most rewarding projects I have been a part of involved children.

This past summer, I was fortunate enough to work on NBC's George to the Rescue helping the Payne Family on Long Island. This family of six has two sons with Autism, and I was called in to help transform the boys' bedrooms and sensory/therapy room into a welcoming and sustainable living space for the entire family.

Creating a sensory room at home and equipping a child or children's bedroom with sensory/therapy design gives the family, and their caretakers, a functional space for daily life – after school, on the weekends, and vacation days when the kids are home from school.

By providing this comforting and welcoming space for the children, other rooms in the home can be maintained for their sole purposes. The family room can be used for traditional gatherings, other siblings can have their own personal space in their rooms and so can their parents. It's very important that parents who are caring for children with Autism have their own area to relax and remain a connected couple.

RENOVATION

By Wendy Lepkoff
Wendy Interiors, Inc.

When you are designing for a child with Autism, whether it be a bedroom, playroom or therapy room, it's critical to take into account factors that you normally wouldn't think twice about. Children with Autism need an environment that suits their very personal needs. Some children are drawn to light, some children need a lot of color, some children are comfortable around a certain theme that takes into account their passions, interests, as well as their likes and dislikes. One child's distraction is another child's calm.

Picking a paint color is actually one of the biggest and most difficult decisions when working on a design project. Think about how much space this one decision is taking up – four walls and a ceiling – big or small that's a lot of surface area. Now consider how detrimental that space is to a child with Autism. I choose soothing colors based on my interview with the child, the parents, and the therapist. Accents on the walls, such as murals that incorporate a theme into a room, can also be used to create an inviting and calming space.

It's not just how a room looks and feels, but also what is in it that creates an environment where a child can feel comfortable. This could be done in a separate room, or if space is limited, a piece of a bedroom. While most kids would love a room filled with toys and games, creating a space for a child with Autism needs to be neat and organized to limit over-stimulation. Shelving that is visible and accessible makes such a difference when putting a room together, it provides necessary independence for the child. Stimulating, therapeutic accessories such as a hammock swing and/or platform swing, or a ball pit with weighted balls, and a mini trampoline help to make a room functional, fun and welcoming. But permanent fixtures, like a rock wall, noodle farm or magnetic walls are where a designer's expertise can really help transform a room.

Lighting design also plays a key role in the development and comfort of a child with Autism. Some children are drawn to light but some, such as fluorescent lighting, may be a struggle.

None of this design work is done in a vacuum. There are many conversations with the parents, the family, the therapists and the children to truly understand all of their personal needs. Even though the parents may want one thing, it's my job to design with the child in mind.

There are so many wonderful options for families with children who have Autism. These children face so many struggles outside their home, it's such a blessing to be able to work with families to create these welcoming and nurturing environments inside their homes.

SEE YOUR RENOVATION IN A NEW LIGHT

BY CHARLES TESTA, CKD
ISLAND KITCHENS & BATHS

Light is extremely important in our daily lives! Whether the light comes from natural daylight or is created by the fire of a candle or that of a table lamp, the object that we see is affected by the quality, quantity and coloration of the light that illuminates the subject. When we are outside and view objects on a bright sunny day, the coloration of an object can look different than when the same object is viewed on a cloudy day. The very same object can also appear different in the early morning or late afternoon than when it was viewed in the middle of the day. Objects can appear either dull and dreary or bright and lively depending upon the varying lighting conditions. Imagine watching a sunset on a summer evening and watching how the colors of an object appear to change from when they are in direct sunlight to the indirect light as the sun sets below the horizon.

Since Thomas Edison invented the incandescent lamp, this had been the most common type of lighting used in the housing industry. From table lamps to ceiling mounted fixtures and recessed ceiling fixtures, commonly referred to as high hats, these have been the “Go To” devices that builders and remodelers usually incorporated into their projects. This type of lighting had numerous drawbacks to them; they were inefficient, consumed a lot of energy and gave off a tremendous amount of heat.

In the 1960’s, fluorescent lighting for the home became popular a option. Fluorescent fixtures would appear in kitchens, home offices, shops and garages. These devices provided generous amounts of light. To the detriment of fluorescent lighting, the colors of the objects illuminated by this type of lighting were different than how they appeared in natural daylight.

Light Emitting Diodes (LED’s) have now taken over! When they were first introduced over twenty years ago, they were incorporated into industrial devices; control panels, emergency exit signs as well as many other devices. There were long lasting and did not use much energy. As the technology improved, there were many types of devices created for use. The most common of these were mounted on a thin tape that could fit into small areas to provide accent illumination.

Brighter levels of light are required for reading, preparing meals or many other types of tasks. As we age, we need more light for all of these activities. Many designers are becoming so much more familiar with these advances in lighting and how they incorporate lighting into their projects. There are many variables that need to be incorporated into any project; colors, textures, art work, etc. situated in the room need to be considered in the planning of the project. In a kitchen or bath renovation project, a good designer will create layers of lighting.

Kitchens need good general lighting as well as under cabinet lighting to allow for safe preparation work. Pendant lights with dimmer controls can alter the atmosphere of the room, but also provide a comfortable setting for meals and other tasks that occur in the space. Cabinets with glass doors can have interior strip lights instead of puck lights to provide a more even distribution of light.

Crown mouldings can be off set to have a soft rim of light surrounding the room. Bathrooms should have good general lighting as well as task lighting for the mirror area. Wall mounted sconces should be either above the mirror or flanking the mirror to provide even illumination for someone applying makeup, shaving or other up close activities. Recessed ceiling fixtures above the mirror can provide shadows that make it more difficult to perform these tasks. Tub and shower areas should be well lit. Remember, most accidents in a house occur in either of these two rooms.

Lighting can do many things for us. It can stimulate one's mood; soft levels of light can provide a comfortable setting for either a dinner party or a romantic evening. A brightly lit room can be a welcoming area for many family activities. Whatever room or whatever activity that you choose to perform, working with a good lighting designer will assure you a successful and stunning project.

BOLD DESIGN FOR A

BOLD PERSONALITY

When Ellen Lopez of EL Design Studio, Inc. met her client for the first time, she knew her kitchen design had to match the homeowner's bold personality.

Recommended to her client by a contractor, the home had recently been flooded due to a burst pipe which damaged the cabinetry in the kitchen, as well as other rooms. "They weren't prepared for a renovation, but decided the time was right to create the kitchen of their dreams," Ellen said.

According to Ellen the home had a show-stopper of a fireplace that was previously hidden, and two adjoining rooms that were being under-utilized. "We took down walls and created a large open space which now allowed the fireplace to be centered as a focal point," she said.

A Certified Kitchen Designer, Ellen also has a background as a colorist which gives her a unique perspective on design. "I first plan out a space for its design and function, then balance tones, texture and pattern for layers of dimension" she said.

A mix of modern and rustic, this stunning kitchen features rich blue painted cabinetry by Custom Wood Products (CWP). A walnut top on the island ties into the mantle on the fireplace. Mellow green cabinetry on the island and range hood provide contrast and complement the design's color scheme.

The homeowner now has ample seating at the island and dining table for entertaining family and friends. A peninsula with a cooktop provides additional over flow space. The modern Graphite appliances – all from Samsung – feature the latest in technology.

EL Design Studio, winner of one 2018 CoTY Award and three 2018 BUZZ Awards, was able to turn what was initially a frustrating circumstance into a very rewarding remodeling experience for their client.

A More Enlightened

Washing dishes with Cove is anything but a chore. Elegant yet efficient, Cove appliances are designed to fit seamlessly, and silently, into any household. The average dishwasher lasts for about ten years. Ten years from now, Cove will just be getting warmed up. It's built in the same state of the art USA facilities as Sub-Zero and Wolf of the same premium-grade materials, then put through a rigorous testing process. Key components are tested individually and every assembled unit is put through functional testing that's far more punishing than anything the average consumer will ever subject the dishwasher to.

Cove is so quiet it will never interrupt a kitchen conversation. An Extra Quiet cleaning mode passes even the fussiest sleeping baby test. But quiet operation is just one of the features that makes Cove a pleasure to own and operate. Bright interior lighting, easy-to-use-controls . . . we have built numerous thoughtful features.

Since 1945, Sub-Zero has been making refrigerators that set the standards to freshness, durability and design. In 2000, Wolf became its kitchen companion, bringing professional level cooking performance to residential customers. Together, you'll find them in the world's finest kitchens. Now Cove is here. It is the culmination of years of research and refinement – of studying the way we all wash our dishes, talking to consumers, and challenging ourselves to improve the dishwashing experience at every step, in every possible way. The only dishwasher with Sub-Zero and Wolf in its DNA - It's the dishwasher you have been waiting for.

Way to Wash

Cove ensures that every dish and utensil -- including plastic containers, heavy saucepans, wire whisks, and even delicate china plates -- emerge from the dishwasher spotlessly clean and dry. With a vast array of customer wash and dry options and an interior that adjusts to accommodate any size or combination of dishes, Cove offers a clean you will never have to second-guess. And there's never any need for pre-rinsing. The dishwasher may be the hardest-working appliance in the kitchen, so it should be the most durable. Cove dishwashers are crafted with premium-grade materials and the warranty is second-to-none. Both models (DW2450 / DW2450WS) can be fully integrated with custom cabinetry or stainless steel panels to complement any kitchen design.

Why do designers love Sub-Zero and Wolf appliances? Because they integrate so beautifully into any kitchen design, opening up endless new possibilities. Cove is here, with that design flexibility and streamlined style and of course, to coordinate perfectly with its Sub-Zero and Wolf kitchen companions. Cove is the only dishwasher that is built to the elegant, exacting standards of Sub-Zero and Wolf. With a pedigree that impressive, it fills a space no other dishwasher can. # FOUR FRESH KITCHEN

Every year, new trends make their way into the hearts and homes of people around the world looking to keep up with what's exciting. Kitchens tend to be one of the more popular spaces subject to the whims of changing design trends, and for good reason. They're more than just a space for food—they're a space for family gatherings and entertaining guests. Additionally, kitchens are often a deciding factor in home sales. To maximize your personal appreciation and the value of your home, it's important to consider current trends when renovating old kitchens or designing new ones from scratch.

Artisanal Intelligence

Last year saw the rise of the machines—or at least the rise of the smart home, with appliances and accessories all connected through wi-fi, controlled by the touch of a finger or the sound of your voice. This year, technology maintains its center-stage focus in kitchens everywhere, with ovens that can be preheated on your way home from work, refrigerators that can share grocery lists and show you a real-time feed of what's inside, and crock-pots that let you control temperature and cook-time from your phone. Thanks to smart appliances, keeping your kitchen stocked has never been easier.

Matte Work

By now you're likely aware of the popularity of matte black. It's sleek, it's sexy, it's...boring? Maybe just a bit. While matte black appliances and accessories are still very much in play this year, the spectrum has been opened up to a wide variety of matte finishes. This year you can expect to see plenty gray, beige and a host of pastels in matte finishes. Black is bold, but everything doesn't have to be so dramatic. If you're looking to make your kitchen's atmosphere lighter and brighter, take a step out of your comfort zone and add a dash of color.

In Plain Sight

Remember when vent hoods used to be statement pieces? Stainless steel protruding from the ceiling to whisk away the scent and smoke of your dinner? Forget it. This year, try integrating your hood into the rest of your kitchen by hiding it behind cabinets or the same material your backsplash is made of. Hiding the hood won't take away from its effectiveness, but it will allow your other (smart, matte) appliances to take center stage. One popular option?

Use reclaimed wood or shiplap to encase the vent, and suddenly you've crossed two kitchen trends off the list.

No Handles, No Problem

Integration is all the rage. Flush-mount, undercounter and built-in appliances are more popular than ever, because they contribute to a cleaner looking, more efficient kitchen. To go along with that trend, there has been a spike in the popularity of handle-less cabinets and drawers – with people opting for finger pulls instead. This trend is perfect for minimalist kitchens, as they create a more streamlined environment to eat and entertain in.

Visit your local Ferguson Bath, Kitchen & Lighting Gallery to find out how you can implement these fabulous trends in your kitchen or visit fergusonshowrooms.com for more information.

EASY GOING STYLE

PHOTOGRAPHED & WRITTEN BY ALEXANDRA YOUNG
COASTAL CABINET WORKS

A mix of grey and a touch of texture; designer Kelly Bailey of Coastal Cabinet Works brings a palette of neutrals together for a home in East Hampton. The homeowner wanted to update the kitchen and bathroom to not only better reflect his personal style, but become more integrated in his home. With that goal in mind, Kelly set to work creating a space fit for his open floor plan.

Kelly staggered the heights of the upper cabinetry, opting to have the refrigerator and hood wrapped in white crown molding while topping the rest in a clean fascia. False doors were designed on the hood to create a symmetrical look. With all the clean lines this kitchen has to offer, doing so keeps the eye moving. A tongue and groove ceiling elongates the kitchen, while adding dimension.

The Cambria countertop in Ella brought perfect harmony to the kitchen. Given the laid back life style of the homeowner, no fuss is key and the durability of the tops ensure he will never have to give a second thought to spills or stains. The earthy, marble feel of the top ties the contrasting finishes of the cabinetry together.

Kelly wrapped up the project by designing a vanity for the hall bath. White cabinetry blends into the tongue and groove detailing, making the room feel more spacious. While the cabinetry may blend in, an unexpected design detail was added to the countertops. Kelly chose Cambria Annicca to bring a bold design detail to our quaint sized vanity.

“The process is different for each client. Some come to us with informed and specific ideas, while others require more information and guidance. They can meander through the showroom in a relaxed environment and select the cabinet styles and designs that speak to them,” Sirlin said.

According to Sirlin, many people come in thinking they know precisely what they want, but, after seeing all that Lakeville has to offer and on display, end up changing their minds. “The design process requires extensive conversations which can be relatively straight forward or complex,” said Sirlin; “we work very patiently with each client.”

While already open for business in Farmingdale, the showroom is still a “work in progress” for the next couple of months. Look for the official “Grand Opening” this Spring. # MASTER BATHROOM RETREAT

By: Samantha O'Leary

After the homeowners completed their first-floor bathroom and kitchen design with Kitchen & Bath Designs owner, Anna Ferrante, they knew they would continue the relationship for their master bathroom project. Although it wasn't as cut and dry as the remodels the homeowners had previously accomplished, they knew it was vital to the success of the project to trust Anna's knowledge and experience with the projects undertaking.

The first step in the remodel was to remove the jacuzzi tub. “We fell in love with the idea of the soaking tub featured on a stone focal wall from Anna’s original presentation”, said the homeowners. Ferrante’s design included removing a corner acrylic shower pan, a large Formica vanity that spanned the entire back wall and relocating the toilet. The new design utilized the exterior window wall with a spacious fully tiled shower. The separating wall acts as the wet wall for the shower, with a niche box storage for toiletries, and the other side being the feature stone wall for the soaking tub, with another niche box for candles to set a relaxing mood. The tremendous double vanity spans the entire back wall; presenting his and hers sinks as well as a makeup desk with pullouts designated for hair care products and make up. The counter wall cabinets with drawers and valances with crown molding, accentuate their cathedral ceilings by drawing the eye up and creating a nook for bright task LED lighting. Moving the toilet to a separate enclosed toilet room created a private and personal area that still feels bright and airy with a frosted glass door.

Anna’s eye for color and detail is shown throughout her meticulous design. From the niche boxes in the shower, to the hexagon tile pattern that fades into the textured porcelain floor, every component has been designed and placed with care in this Commack master bathroom.
