Featured HBB: Anita Biggins, Amazon Associate

My family and I have been Amazon Prime Members since 2015. My children use the Amazon Fire Kids Tablets where they can read unlimited books and play online games. As a family we enjoy watching wholesome movies using our Amazon Fire TV stick. We don't get cable television because it is too expensive. We pay just $109 a year for unlimited library of movies and free two day shipping. As a mom I enjoy shopping from home for my family. A lot of people still prefer to leave their homes to go shopping, so there is a need for freelance marketers. I became interested in marketing for Amazon when I developed a business relationship with the sellers. The sellers give me free products to market on my social media networks: Instagram, Facebook, Twitter and LinkedIn. I am also a certified Spanish teacher originally from Pennsylvania. Currently I am a stay at home mom; my daughters are 8 and 11. They are completing their course work through Bob Jones Homeschool Online Academy.

Scouting Tradition Shapes Ohio's Future Leaders

Guest Column from State Representative Steven Arndt

The scouting tradition is one that I hold near and dear, and it is always important for me to recognize the young men and women who accomplish their goals as Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. I was involved in Scouting for many years and can attest that the work these organizations do for our children goes a long way. They have been around since the early 1900s and maintain their same missions today—to help mold and support the future leaders of our country.
