Sue O'Neill Johnson (1939-2007)

We regret to have to inform you of the sad loss of Sue who passed away last month. The immediate response from officers and the numerous messages on the Memorial Wiki (<http://asistmemorial.pbwiki.com/Susan-ONeill-Johnson>) and SIG-III list are testimony to the huge impact that Sue has had on this SIG III.

Here are some of Sue's many contributions to SIG III as mentioned in the group's nomination letter for her 2003 ASIST SIG Member-of-the-Year Award:

SIG III has been a winner of the ASIST SIG-of-Year Award for the past three years in a row (2000-2002) while Sue played a leadership role in the group as its Chair in 1999-2000, Past Chair 2000-2001, and Chair Elect 2001-2002. Under Sue's leadership, SIG III has initiated many new programs, such as International Paper Contest and International Travel Grants, to name a few.

Sue pays a great attention to the success of various programs sponsored by SIG III and works on every single detail to ensure their success. For example, for the International Paper Contest, Sue actively participates in the campaign to market the paper contest. In 2000, Sue presented the details of the program to a group of librarians in Delhi, India. Sue also oversees the paper collecting process, serves as a reviewer, ensures winners to be recruited as ASIST members and top winners to have funds to travel to the United States to present their winning papers, makes hotel arrangements for these international presenters, and contacts ASIST Bulletin editor, Irene L. Travis, and the International Information and Library Review editor, Toni Carbo, to publish outstanding submissions. It is not surprising that the International Paper Contest has attracted more and more papers each year. In 2002, 43 papers were received. This year, 51 papers from 23 developing countries are received.

With so many active and popular programs sponsored by SIG III, there is a great demand to raise fund to support these programs. Sue has been working actively to contact other SIGs, Chapters, and individuals and commercial financial donors to secure funds. She has helped raise $18,700.00 in four years to help pay for 6 two-year memberships, and travel grant opportunities. She has also managed the Eugene Garfield Travel Grants (135 applicants), which became a SIG project. Recently, in May 2003, she worked with PVC Chapter to put on an international Bazaar in Alexandria, VA to supplement Eugene Garfield Travel Grant funds. The event raised $1,355.38. In addition, she raised an additional $262.00 at a home yard sale of donated items. She also oversees a project to create a new web site this year to thank all donors for their supporting the International Paper Contest and InfoShare program.

Sue works very hard for the group's continuing growth. She has been recruiting active members with leadership capabilities to join the SIG III board. She has served as a mentor to many international information scientists and keeps contact with them. For the Global Village project at the 2003 ASIST Annual Meeting, Sue will provide a Powerpoint presentation which will be showing International Contest winners over the years, where they are, and what they are doing today. She started a program in 2000 to award six two-year memberships a year to winners of the International Paper Contest. She has actively encouraged and participated in the expansion of donations to the InfoShare project, which is giving several one-year memberships per year to recommended foreign information professionals. She has recruited three International Paper Contest winners (from Kenya, India and Indonesia) serving on the SIG III Board.

Sue has been effectively promoting the continuation and development of the group's electronic newsletter and has contributed items and ideas to almost every single issue. Sue is also a good supporter to the group's web site and a web site for full text documents of all papers submitted to the International Paper Contest. She has attended all ASIST annual meetings since 1999 and has organized well-received programs for the meetings.

During the last three years, Sue has developed "Plan of Actions" for the SIG which was considered a model to be considered by other SIGs. She has been continuously communicating with the SIG Officers, the ASIST Headquarters, and other ASIST leaders for the careful and timely implementation of the SIG plans. She participated in other professional meetings and activities.

In general, Sue, has been a very creative and dynamic leader for SIG III. Her remarkable and significant contributions have had a great impact on the SIG III and the international information communities. She truly deserves this SIG Member-of-the-Year Award.

ASIST's account of Sue's life (http://www.asis.org/sue\_oneill\_johnson.html) stressed her love of music. Here are two photos of her playing musical instruments.

I am sure that very many of you will join me in thanking Sue for all that she has done for SIG III and expressing our condolences to her family and friends.

SIG of the Year Award

For the sixth time in the last eight years, SIG III won the SIG of the Year Award – this time jointly with SIG Digital Libraries (previous awards this decade were in 2000, 2001, 2002, 2005 and 2006). Congratulations to everyone for making this possible and let's continue the great work.

SIG III events at the AM

International Reception

Monday, October 22nd at 8pm -
<http://www.asis.org/Conferences/AM07/social.html#iii>.

Elsevier Publishers which has supported this event over the years is doing it again this year with a contribution of $1000 which we appreciate. Elsevier will be represented at the reception by Tony Roche and will have a table to display their publications. In addition, Tony has offered to bring 5 complimentary copies of the IILR special issue to the reception for attendees to take away (first come first served!) Caryn Anderson, Kate Johnson and Vika Kravchyna are working on the usual annual Silent Auction to support the InfoShare program.

Co-sponsorship of sessions

We will be co-sponsoring with other SIGs the following sessions:

- Information Behavior in Developing Countries: Research, Issues, and Emerging Trends (SIG USE, SIG III, SIG ED) - Tuesday, Oct. 23 at 8.30am.
- International Perspectives in Open Government (SIG III and SIG IFP) - Tuesday, Oct. 23 at 10.15am.
- North American Information Initiatives in Sub-Saharan Africa (NAIISA): Social Computing Environments and Implications (SIG III) – Tuesday, Oct. 23 at 2:15pm.
- 5th Global Information Village Plaza, MySpace, OurSpace: Social Networking in the International - Tuesday, Oct. 23 at 4pm.

SIG III business meetings

SIG III will be holding two Business Meetings at the Annual Meeting:

Monday Oct 22: 9:00-10:30am: Room Gilpatrick B

Tuesday Oct 23: 6:30-7:50pm: Room Gilpatrick C

Anyone interested in these meetings is very welcome to attend.

Book auction

Bring one new or slightly used book on information science or relevant topic. ASIS&T will collect them and donate them to a selected institution. A collection bin will be made available near the registration area. For further details see the next article.

Book Auction

The recipient institution for this year's auction is the East African School of Library and Information Science (EASLIS), Makerere University, Uganda (<http://easlis.mak.ac.ug/>)

Materials of particular interest to EASLIS are the following:

- Types of Information Materials sought
- Textbooks, Conference proceedings within 10 years period.
- Commissioned Reports, International Organizations Reports (e.g. World Bank, and UN Agencies) related to information management for the last 2-3 years for
- Social-economic and political development of the World
- Journals: in Information Science, Library Science, Records Management, Archives, Conservation and Preservation, Museology, etc. that have a connotation and would assist Graduate researchers in the school. Preferably complete series in not more than 10 years back.
- Video Tapes and CDs: For demonstration purposes in respective subjects like preservation of records, printing science, library management, reading culture, etc.
- E-Resources: If we could link with a LIS institution to share publicly available E-resources in their library.
- Technical Processing tools and systems: Specialized classification systems e.g., health information systems, industrial systems.

For more information about this event, please visit the donation web site at http://www.uwm.edu/Dept/SOIS/ASIST\_book\_donation/.

Some news from the Chair

International Paper Contest

SIG III conducted a successful paper contest where we received an impressive number of papers on information science development initiatives and trends in the developing world. 6 winners were selected and the top two will be present at this year's international reception. 6 of these papers will also appear in the September 2007 issue of the International Information and Library Review. All the 6 winners receive two years of free membership to ASIST.

SIG III has been organizing the International Paper Contest successfully for the past 8 years. As of today, 343 authors from 51 countries have contributed 283 papers.

InfoShare

The InfoShare program awards one-year ASIST memberships to information professionals in developing countries for whom the cost of membership would be a financial burden.

This year owing to a successful fundraising at the International Reception last year, SIG III has been able to sponsor fourteen deserving information professionals for ASIST memberships. More sponsorship is planned for this year.

Global Information Village Plaza at the AM

In terms of my recent work on the Plaza, there's actually not much new to report. The Plaza keeps rolling forward in terms of Blog content, and I'm working on getting it in shape for the Annual Meeting. I need a few additional volunteers for the Plaza session team, as I outline below.

I managed to free up some time at the end of September and the beginning of October to add some new content. I've added three extensive new posts over the past two weeks, and have ideas for another three or four somewhat less extensive posts that I will add in time for the Meeting, which should provide more than enough content for discussion at the Plaza session.

The new content I've posted recently discusses the rise of the Brazilian social media presence on the Internet, which is extensive and growing very rapidly. I've also added a two-part discussion (soon to be expanded to three parts) on sexuality, censorship and subversion on the Web in modern China. The latter discussion focuses on two blogs in particular discussing sexuality in modern China that offer interesting perspectives on what the Chinese government will censor and what kinds of topics young Chinese people will discuss through social media.

Building upon these recent posts, I hope to soon add content about another two blogs discussing sexuality – one in Brazil, and the other in England. I believe the China-Brazil-England cultural comparison of this topic will be particularly interesting, especially given that each of these bloggers has chosen to link the topic of sexuality to technology and social media. I also plan to add one post each calling for discussion of two blog posts that recently appeared in the African blogosphere – one discussing racial diversity in the South African blogosphere, and the other discussing feminism in the African blogosphere as a whole. It is my hope that calling for commentary on socially relevant issues like these as they exist in the international blogosphere will generate some good discussion on the SIG-III blog.

In terms of publicity, I've created profiles for myself on several social networks – Facebook and MySpace of course, but also Orkut and Bebo in order to contact the Brazilian, Indian, and British crowds. I've even tried to join Mixi in Japan, CyWorld in Korea, and Zhanzuo in China, although without much success due to the language barriers. I've joined librarian groups on these social networks and have begun posting announcements to these groups. I'm hoping to drive traffic up as much as possible – if you know someone (a person or a listserv) who would be interested in checking the Blog out, let them know!

I am also in the process of assembling the Plaza session team. My thanks to those of you who have volunteered so far! I still need two volunteers to act as discussion facilitators. (When we have the Plaza, I will give a brief introduction to the Plaza, its purpose, and what we will do during the session. After this intro we will have 20 to 25 minutes of group discussion at four tables, with a facilitator at each table to lead the discussion. I will ask each facilitator in turn for a summary of their table's discussion, and then open the floor up to all for additional commentary). I also need another two or more volunteers to act as greeters for people who come in the door to let them know what the Plaza is, and what kind of a discussion we will be having.

To sum up, I've still got a lot of work to do before the conference, but the Plaza is coming together. I look forward to presenting it and to seeing everyone in Milwaukee!

Photo and biography of the author

Soumitra completed his Bachelor of Technology (B Tech) in Chemical Engineering from the Institute of Technology, Banaras Hindu University. He published papers in several technical areas such as biofuels, waste-water treatment and nanotechnology, during his engineering course. His current areas of expertise include consumer goods, retail, and e-Government. In the latter, Soumitra has worked on projects related to “public-private partnership in e-Government” in recent months. He already has two international publications in the area of e-Government, to his credit. Recently, he was among the few professionals globally, to be extended a personal invitation by the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University, to attend the executive program "Successful Cross-Boundary Transformation: The Role of Executive Sponsors", in June 2007.

Soumitra has also served as a reviewer for Water Research (an International Water Association – IWA journal, published by Elsevier) and the Communities and Action: Prato CIRN Conference (to be organized in Italy, October 2007). Further, he has recently published an article on "Knowledge Process Outsourcing" in i4d (Information for Development), an international print magazine covering the Information and Communication Technology for Development (ICT4D) sector. Recently, he was invited by the Images Multimedia Group to write an expert column on "private labels in the Indian retail industry".

His other areas of interest include Numismatics and Adventure Sports.

I graduated with a B Sc. Degree in Zoology – Chemistry, and later joined the Library & Information Sc profession. My research at Masters Level was on biomedical resources (databases) and annotated bibliography, w.r.t. AIDS. I then completed my Ph.D. in the specialty, where I studied - User search behavior using Medline on CDROM. Since beginning of my career, have been associated with special libraries, starting with library for geomagnetic research for a very short period of three years, and then later with biomedical research institute. I have been practicing biomedical / medical librarian since 1983, for more than 20 years and is currently a Head of Dept of Lib Sc (Digital Library) at Tata Memorial Hospital Mumbai, a super specialty premier hospital for cancer in India. My area of specialization is information resources, their organization for better retrieval – traditional and electronic, Information search and retrieval, user studies, and training programme for end users for effective use of resources.

I has been associated with a number of projects, related to library over all development – library building, infrastructure (hard ware and L I S Management software), microfilming of archival documents, and for past few years she has focused on documenting Indian literature on Cancer and is also associated with designing and conducting several training programmes for end users, am also the driving force responsible for the library website.

I have also organized several seminars on topics like – Bibliographic formats, trends in biomedical research, and recently Information resources, Integration and KM, and its related aspects KM, KOS and KRM held recently, to address user needs and assess the professional skills required.

Academically, I have won Prof. D N Marshall felicitation prize at the Masters of Library Sc. Examination for scoring highest, at the University of Mumbai and was also awarded the Smt. V Khandwala prize for the PhD Research by SNDT Women's University, Mumbai.

I have been member of Institutional Ethics Committee (IRB) for past one year and life member for the professional associations. I am also the Council member for "Indian Association for Science Library and Information Centre".

Most of my publications are short research related to practice and user studies and have been presented at National and International conferences in India.
