

2019 Edmonton Business Community Survey

Business Conditions in the Region

What is the single most important issue facing Alberta businesses today?*

*only responses over 9% are listed

The Edmonton Chamber of Commerce Business Community Survey is based on interviews with a random sample of 250 businesses in the Edmonton Metropolitan Region. Surveys were conducted by Trend Research using a hybrid methodology whereby businesses were contacted at random by telephone and given the option of answering the survey over the telephone or online. The survey results were collected between July 12 to 30, 2019.

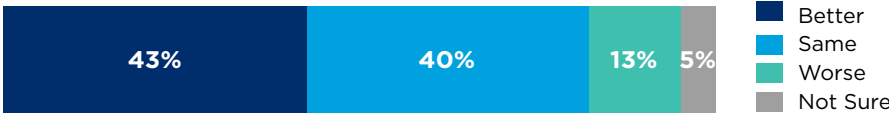

A random sample of 250 is considered accurate to within 6.1 percentage points, 19 times out of 20 (i.e. at a 95% confidence interval).

edmontonchamber.com

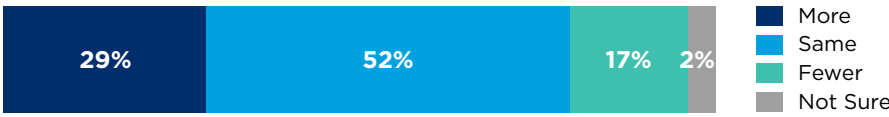

Compared to one year ago, would you say that business conditions in Edmonton are...

Looking ahead a year from now, do you expect business conditions in Edmonton to be...

A year from now, do you think your organization will have more employees in the Greater Edmonton area, the same number, or fewer employees?

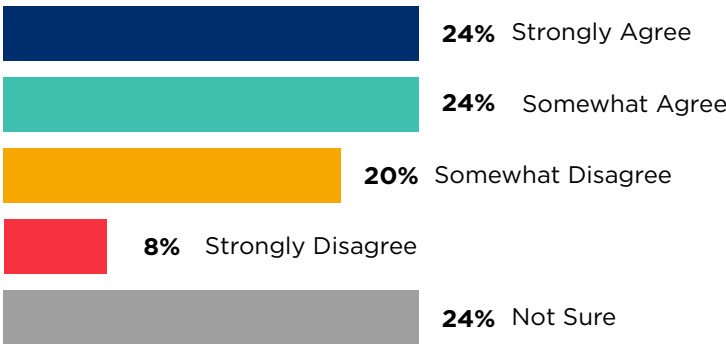

Given the economic climate, do you think now is a good time, a bad time, or neither a good nor bad time for your business to make major capital investments?

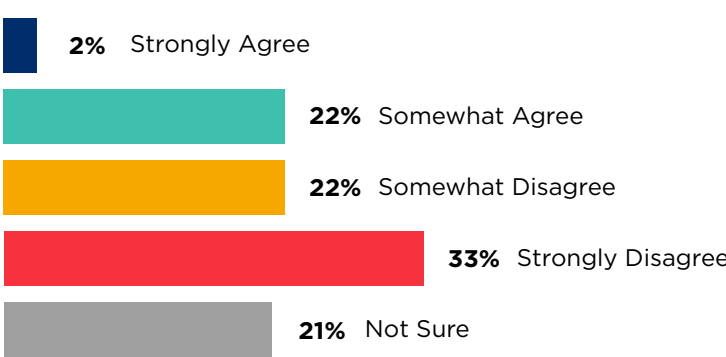

Doing Business in Edmonton

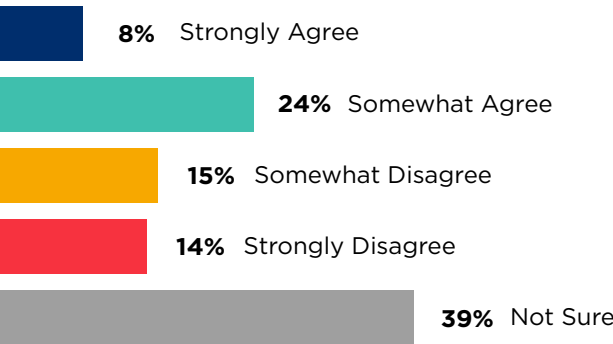

Businesses outside the City of Edmonton have a competitive advantage because of less regulatory burden/red tape.

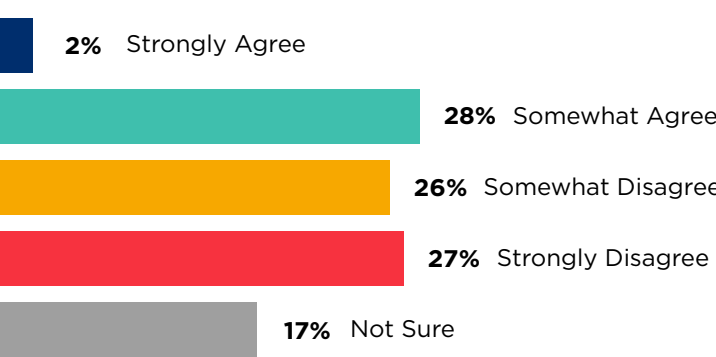

Businesses operating within the City of Edmonton get good value for the property taxes they pay.

Businesses permits are approved by the City of Edmonton in a timely fashion.

The City of Edmonton is doing enough to help businesses remain competitive and grow.

Generally speaking, would you say you strongly approve, somewhat approve, somewhat disapprove, or strongly disapprove of the way the City of Edmonton manages its budget?

